Scales and Gauges

I have always wanted a Garden Railway, but.....

Where should I start?

What Scale or Gauge should I use?

Should it be Standard or Narrow Gauge?

These are some of the questions we get asked all the time, to help with decisions and clear up some confusions a summary of the various scales and gauges commonly used outdoors is given below.

Model Railway	Scale	Prototype Gauge	Model Gauge	Rail Code*	Comment	Availability
Gauge 0	7mm/ft 1:43	4ft 8½in Standard	32mm	100-125	The smallest of the larger scales and probably the smallest for garden use. Almost entirely track current with some live steam and battery.	Kits, RTR, Scratchbuilt, Limited edition Oriental RTR
Gauge 1	10mm/ft 1:32	4ft 8½in Standard	45mm	180-250	Live steam (mainly meths) and battery. Stud contact for track current. Not much two rail electric	Kits, RTR, Scratchbuilt, Limited edition Oriental RTR
SM32	16mm/ft 1:19	2ft Narrow	32mm	200	Live Steam or battery	Kits, Live steam RTR with Radio Control, Scratchbuilt. Freelance designs predominate
G Scale Narrow Gauge (G45, LGB)	13.5mm/ft 1:22.5	3-3½ft Narrow	45mm	250-332	Track current electric, battery, live steam	Proprietary RTR, Kits, RTR live Steam with Radio Control, Brass RTR
G Scale Standard Gauge (G64, Gauge 3)	13.5mm/ft 1:22.5	4ft 8½in Standard	63.5mm 2½in	330	Track current electric, battery, live steam	Kits, Brass RTR
*Rail Height expressed in Thousandths of an Inch

The term 'Prototype' refers to the full sized railway, and the term 'Gauge' refers to the distance between the rails. There are two basic groups; Standard which is 4ft 8½in, and Narrow which is anything less.

G Scale refers to the ratio of 1:22.5 (13.5mm/ft) now widely used to model both Standard Gauge (63.5mm) and Narrow Gauge (45mm) Prototypes. Note that the 'G Scale Standard Gauge' is often referred to as 'Gauge3' or 'G64' and 'G Scale Narrow Gauge' is often referred to as 'G45' or 'LGB'.

However it is worth mentioning that within 'G Scale' there are more than one scale ratio in use. In fact there are no less than 3 sub scales that will be commonly encountered apart from the technically 'correct' 1:22.5. The reason for this is a desire on the part of manufacturers to enable widely disparate types of rolling stock from many different parts of the world to be able to run together and 'look correct'.

Therefore you may encounter models at scales of:

- 1:20.3 e.g. Accucraft, Bachmann Spectrum, American Narrow Gauge.
- 1:24 e.g. Accucraft.
- 1:29 e.g. USA Trains, Aristocraft, Accucraft, American Standard Gauge.

Getting Started

When you start an interest in Garden Railways, it is very useful to get as much information as you can. The GRS starter pack can be bought at a special price of £90 (instead of the usual £120) with a free £20 gift voucher to use against your first purchase.
